ETHEL REED

DEDICATED
TO
MISS ETHEL REED

This second volume of the Crusader, the year book of Woodrow Wilson High School, is dedicated to its literary sponsor, Miss Ethel Reed. Her sympathetic understanding of our student problems and her unaffected sincerity in her friendship for us have brightened our school year and have won for her our love and admiration.

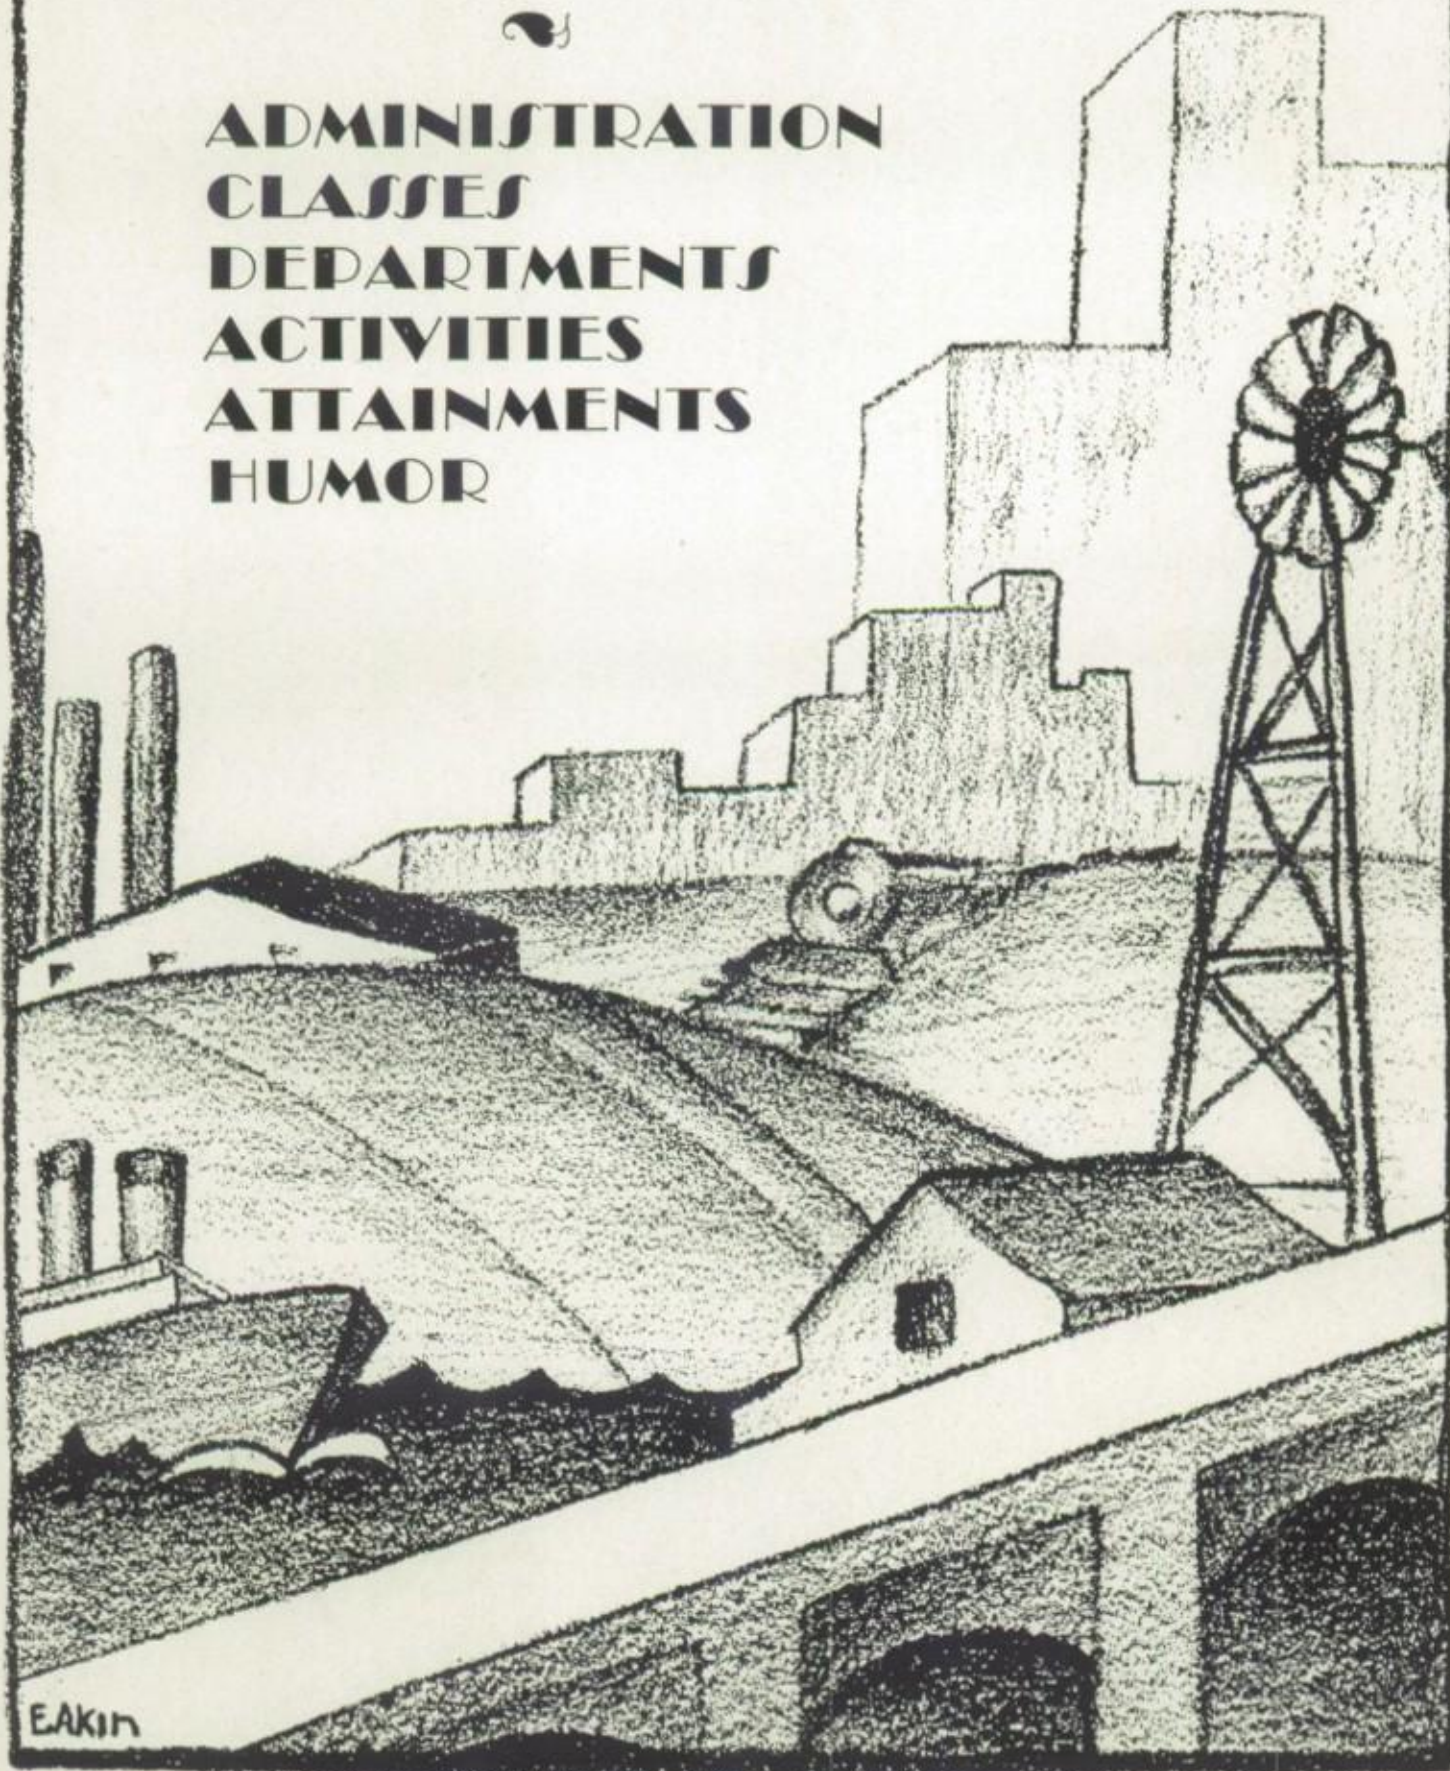

FOREWORD

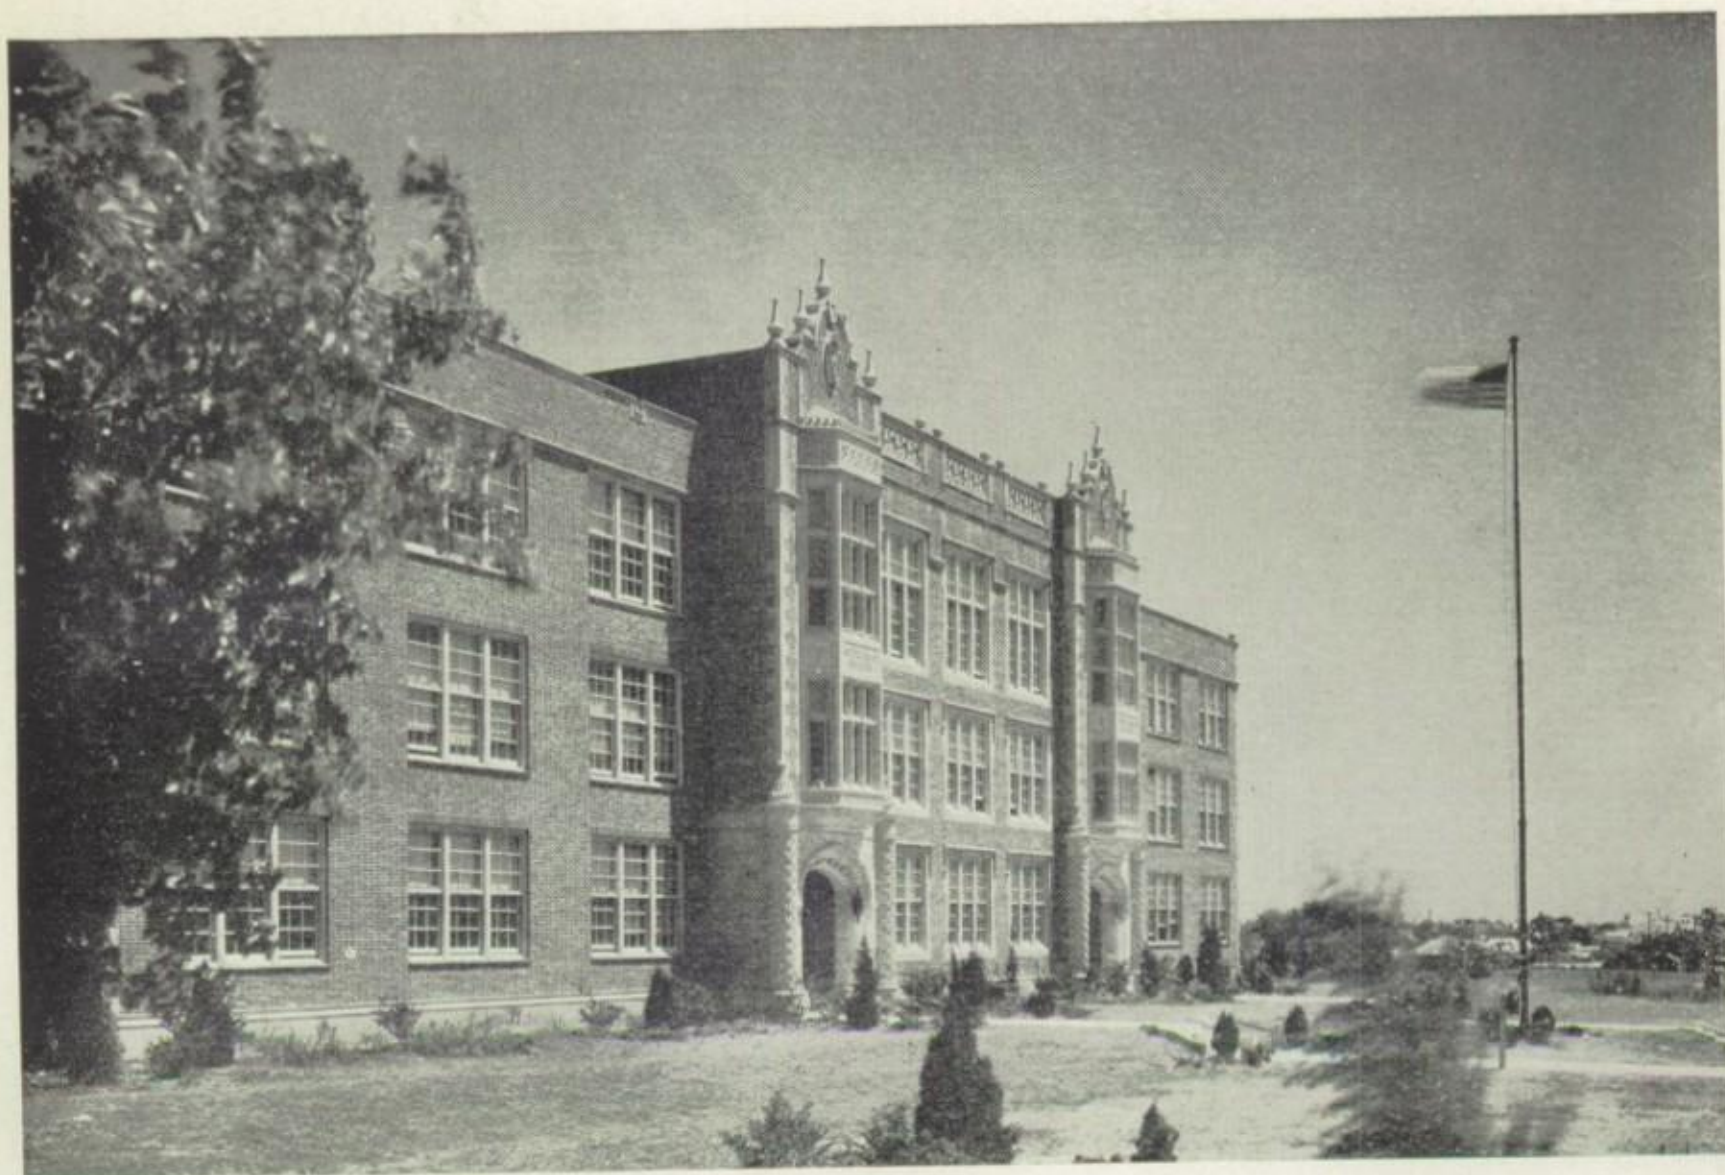

It is our aim to present in this book two composite pictures of Texas life: one, portraying our early settlers, the pioneers of yesterday; the other, portraying modern youth, the pioneers of tomorrow.

G. L. ASHBURN

A TRIBUTE

As nations strong, of old were wont
At heroes' feet flowered wreaths to lay,
So we to Woodrow's pal and friend
Our laurels wish to pay.

His kindly words and cheery smile
Have oft dispelled our gloom;
And for the students one and all
His heart holds ample room.

In the trials that rise from day to day
And fill us with despair,
He ever proves himself to be
A comrade true and fair.

So here's to one we love so well,
A friend at every turn;
Then shout it loud: "Three cheers," we say,
"For faithful 'Pop' Ashburn!"

The Parent-Teacher Association

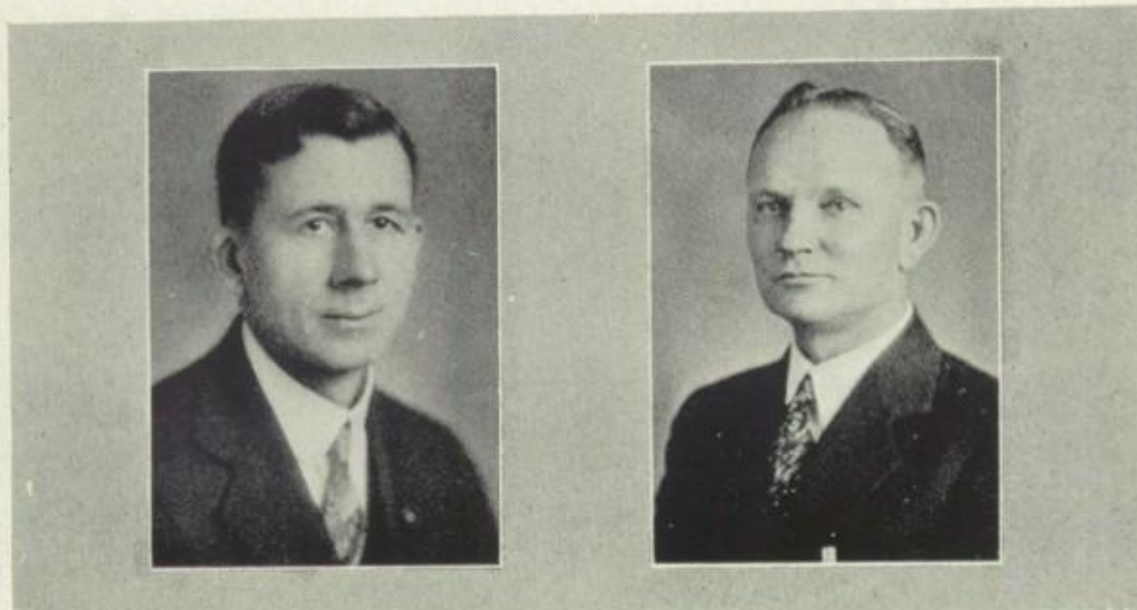

*"Work for some good, be it ever so slowly.
Cherish some flower, be it ever so lowly.
Labor, all labor, is noble and holy."*

Keeping the above lines as our watchword, we, the members of the Woodrow Wilson Parent-Teacher Association, find great pleasure in having a part in the school life of our boys and girls.

We strive to bring about a closer relationship between the home and the school; to stimulate a greater interest in all student activities of the school; and to be ready at all times to co-operate with the teachers of the school and our principal, Mr. G. L. Ashburn, to whom we are greatly indebted for their help in preparing our children for future problems in life.

The Dads' Club

The Dads' Club of Woodrow Wilson High School purports to bring the fathers, the teachers, and the students of Woodrow Wilson High School together in helpful co-operation in all the social, athletic, and academic activities of the student body, and to promote the general welfare of the school.

The club was reorganized on November 22, 1929. Since then the membership has been raised to sixty-five. This year the club has purchased a flag for the school and has helped in the betterment of the school in various other ways.

Message from the Junior Class

Juniors! Assembling from the four corners, as it were, and realizing, for the first time that we are slightly superior to the lowly "fish," we are just beginning to appreciate the state of being upper classmen. However, the one ultimate goal in the heart of every junior is to be a senior. It is hard to believe that there is just one more milestone to be passed before we reach that goal; nevertheless we are approaching nearer and nearer.

The class is beginning to do its part by furnishing the athletic teams with a number of members and by being outstanding in the scholastic field as well. A glance at the roster of the Good Scholarship Club amply confirms this latter statement.

In military attainments we have on the list of officers and non-commissioned officers many juniors, thereby proving that we are learning to command as well as our predecessors commanded.

A long list of achievements could be recorded, but to juniors "It is not what we are now; it is what we shall be."

Message from the Sophomore Class

The 1929 sophomore class of Woodrow Wilson High School began its work in September with highest hopes for the coming school term. Whatever the expectations were, surely there have not been many disappointments.

Tennis, track, basketball, and football have been greeted with much enthusiasm. Several members of this class have exhibited marked talent in the music department. Furthermore, one finds an increasing number of sophomores on the honor roll.

To be able to call one's self a sophomore is a distinct honor! However, to be able to call someone else "fish" is almost the highest attainment one can reach in high school. Although the sophomores may now look up to the seniors very meekly, they feel that some day they themselves will hold that proud position; and for that end they are striving.

Message from the Freshmen Class

Although this freshman class has not been in existence long enough to have much of a history, we know that many freshmen are members of the R. O. T. C. and that a large number are in the eighty and ninety groups of the Good Scholarship Club. We are also proud to relate that last year six or more of our class went out for football, and we are expecting more this year.

It may be difficult to live up to the standard of attainment of our advanced schoolmates, but we will endeavor to help to make our school the best in Dallas, as it may well be, with its fine building and its wonderful faculty. While we continue to labor under books and detention cards, we will strive to leave a record that will be hard for the freshmen of the future to surpass.

We expect to look back in the years that are to come, and proudly say, "I was a student of Woodrow Wilson High School." It is our hope that some day the school will be proud of us, at least, that it may never have cause to feel otherwise.

ROBERT E. BAIRD

DEPARTMENTS

Orchestra

The Woodrow Wilson Orchestra, under the direction of Miss Johanna Klotsche, has had a busy and successful year.

The orchestra consists of thirty members. Seventeen of its members played in the All-City High School Orchestra, which gave a concert Thanksgiving Night before the Texas State Teachers' Association. Another concert was given in the spring.

During the course of the year the orchestra played for commencement exercises, the senior play, and a Rotary dinner.

Chorus

Under the direction of Miss Johanna Klotsche the Girls and Boys Chorus has completed a very busy and successful year. Early in the year the chorus sang a group of numbers at the High School Teachers' Institute. February 14, the Boys' Chorus presented a very successful minstrel in the school auditorium. Besides these appearances the mixed chorus has given a varied program in the high school assembly.

LIEUTENANT ERNEST MULLER

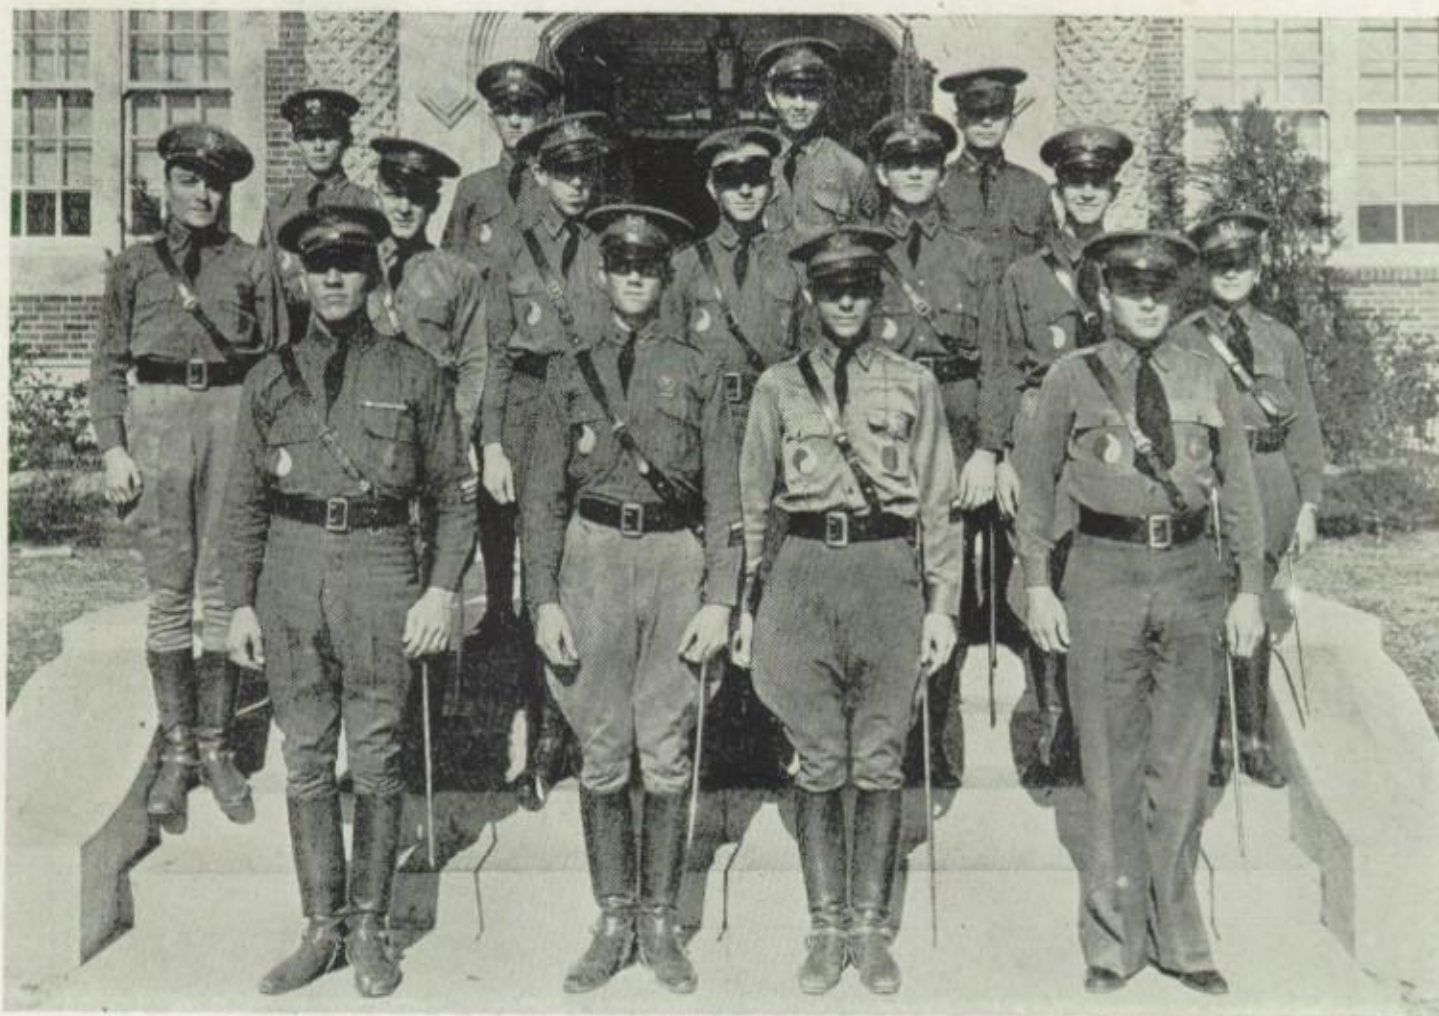

SERGEANT WILLIAM FOSTER

Military Department

We have two big reasons in this school for believing that we shall proceed a long way on the road to military honors. They are Lieutenant Ernest Muller, our commandant, and Sergeant William Foster, his assistant. Both have shown untiring effort in the interest of our corps.

Last spring marked the first appearance of the Crimson and the Gray in the Competitive Crack Company Drill. We were happy to win second place. This year, our corps having increased in numbers as well as in quality, we have had the largest corps in the city.

Our band has also achieved something of which it is justly proud. In the fall it won second place in the City Band Contest. Under the very efficient teaching of Colonel Herzog, it has been among the leaders of the city for the past two years.

Department of Physical Education

The year 1929-30 has been a very busy one for the Physical Education Department. Shortly after school opened last September, we were asked to repeat the "Pageant of Nations" given the previous May for the Rotary International Convention. This was for Dallas Day at the Fair.

When we were beginning to recover from the pageant, we heard talk of a teachers' convention to be held in Dallas at Thanksgiving time. Oh dear, more work! And sure enough, before many weeks passed we were coming to school early, staying late, and going out to Fair Park Auditorium to practice. However, on the final day the demonstration went over in grand style, and we decided that the applause from the spectators made all the previous practicing worth while.

Just as we were back from vacation with the convention off our minds, Miss Alexander announced that we were to put on a program in assembly. We managed to work this up during our regular class periods and really enjoyed showing our talents to our fellow students.

After the usual mid-year examinations and re-enrolling, including a host of brand-new freshmen, we settled down to our regular class work. About the first of March we started thinking about our annual demonstration to be given in April. This always causes extra enthusiasm because we have so much fun putting on our "Gym Dem." All the practicing is done in our class periods, for that is what we show to outsiders—our everyday work, with just a little trimming in the form of costumes. The big night came, and though we were excited, we felt so much at home when we got into the "gym" that we forgot about those eight hundred spectators, and played and danced just as well as we do every day in class.

From the middle of April to the end of school nothing unusual happened. We had our annual tenikoit and baseball tournaments and slid through the warm weather without too much exertion.

HERSCHEL FORESTER

WADE THOMPSON

FRED G. ERNEY

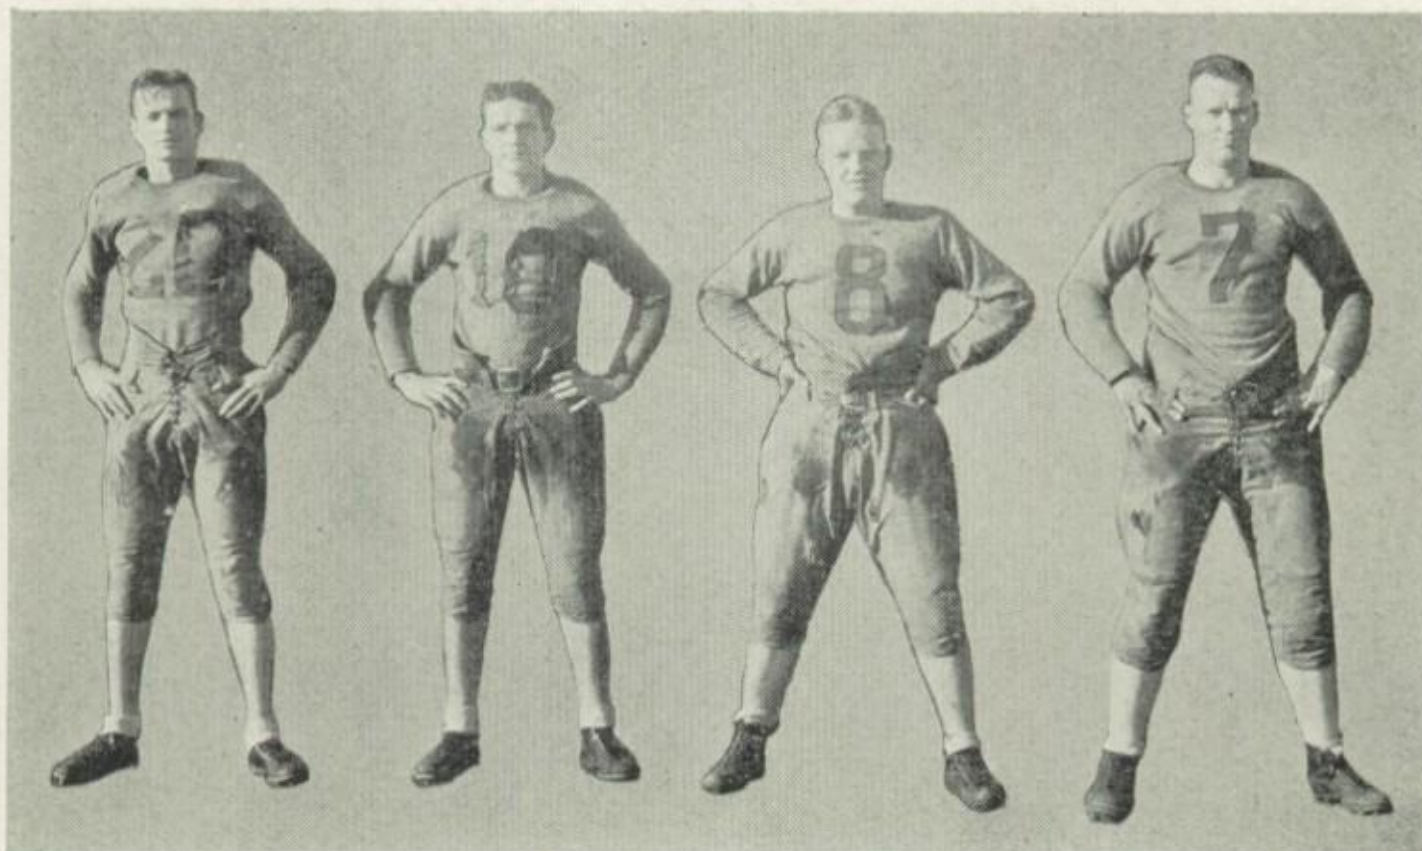

The Coaching Staff

With the addition of Coach Herschel Forester, who comes to us from Forest, Woodrow can boast one of the best coaching staffs in the city. Mr. Forester has a great record as a coach, and he has already made many friends and put spirit and fight into a very inexperienced machine.

Though new to us last year, Mr. Thompson, assistant coach, has already made a place for himself in the school, and is a valuable asset to the athletic department.

Mr. Erney is well known to most of us. He is business manager of the athletic department. Mr. Erney also sponsors the golf team.

CHESTER GARRETSON

PAUL CALLAHAN

RAY HUGHES

ALLEN HANSEN

CHESTER GARRETSON

End

Chester Garretson finished his last season with the Wildcats by playing some excellent football. Chester could certainly snag passes out of the air, and he always played a consistent defensive game. Because of his wonderful season he was given the position of end on the mythical All-Dallas High School Team.

RAY HUGHES

Tackle

Ray Hughes, one of our "small" men on the team, is another reason why Woodrow Wilson had one of the best lines in the city. He alternated with Hansen in holding down the position of left tackle. Ray played a good defensive game, and always got his man.

PAUL CALLAHAN

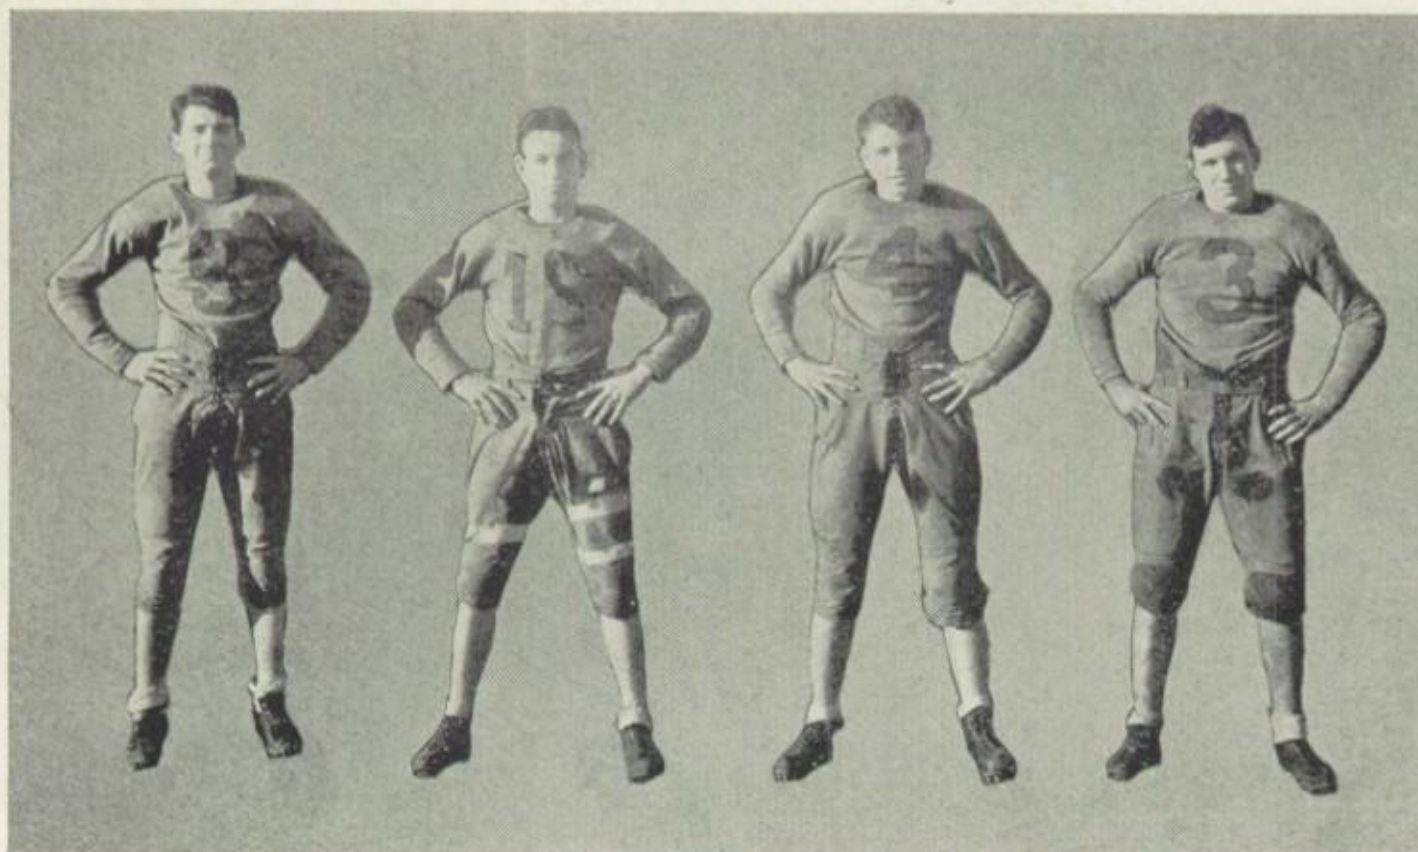

Quarterback

Co-Captain Paul Callahan ended his career as a Wilson football player in a burst of glory. Paul was out much of the season with a broken nose, but he made up for lost time in the game against Sunset. Everyone who saw that game will remember his wonderful work at plunging the line.

ALLEN ("TINY") HANSEN

Tackle

"Tiny" Hansen, line captain, was one of the best line men in the city until he injured his knee. Even then his work was considered so good that he was given a berth on the All-City Team. During the end of the season Allen played just as hard from the bench as any player on the field.

E. J. GANNON

D. M. McELROY

J. R. SMITH

JIMMY BLACK

E. J. GANNON Halfback

E. J. Gannon's broken field running helped make many a touchdown for Woodrow this season. This was Gannon's last season as a Wilsonite, and he played football that will leave an impression on the students for a long time. Gannon was also given a position on the All-City Team.

J. R. SMITH Quarterback

J. R. played his first and last season as a regular, but he handled the position of quarterback as a veteran. J. R. also did most of the kicking for Woodrow, and he did it well. In addition to his punting and signal barking, he did some good ball-carrying.

D. M. McELROY Halfback

On D. M.'s, Black's, and Gannon's shoulders rested most of the responsibility of carrying the ball, and D. M. did his share of it well. Despite his rather small size he managed to gain much yardage for his school by his excellent broken-field running.

JIMMY BLACK Halfback

Jimmy Black received his letter because of his broken-field running. Besides being a graceful runner he is also a very good one. He received mention by the newspapers in almost every game. Jimmy was also very popular with his supporters, who always cheered him loudly.

J. W. OWENS

D. F. SABLE

HERMAN DOWNING

BILL STEIN

J. W. OWENS End

J. W. Owens held down the opposite end from Chester Garretson. He played a great deal of the time, and was especially efficient in his defensive game. He always stopped them when they attempted to skirt his end.

D. F. SABLE Tackle

D. F. Sable was one of the season's most consistent players. He played in every game, and practically the entire game. Although the position of tackle is a hard one to play the whole game, he was always fighting and always ready to do his share for victory.

HERMAN DOWNING Guard

Herman Downing did very creditable work at guard this season. Herman is not so well known as some of the other boys, but he will certainly come to the front this next season.

BILL STEIN Guard

Bill Stein was one of the Wildcats' guards, and an excellent one. He was in practically every starting line-up, and he fought during the entire time he was in. Woodrow will lose a good man in Stein.

BOB WEBB

JOE KOONCE

DAVID JOHNSON

PARKER HOWE

BOB WEBB Center

In Bob Webb, Woodrow has one of its most promising stars. Although only a junior, he played excellent football, receiving several honorable mentions and the prediction of a great future. Bob was in on every play, and more than one opponent felt the effect of his tackling.

JOE KOONCE Guard

Joe Koonce is a little man in stature, but what he lacks in size he makes up in fighting spirit. It has been remarked that Joe fought more than anyone on the team. He could always be depended on to do his part, no matter how heavy the odds.

DAVID JOHNSON Fullback

David Johnson played his first year of high school football during 1929. He was especially noticable in his defensive work. David is only a junior, and will be back next year, ready to do his share to make it well worth remembering.

PARKER HOWE Fullback

Parker Howe, together with David Johnson, held down the position of fullback. Parker's line plunging helped Woodrow in many tight places. Parker's specialty, however, was to catch passes, no matter where or how they were thrown. He was also indispensable in his work of backing up the line.

GLENN BERT

EARL BROWN

OLIVER RYAN

EARL PLATT

GLENN BERT End

Glenn Bert played a good game at end during his first season as a regular. This season he came up from the second team to play good football and earn his letter.

OLIVER RYAN Guard

Oliver Ryan started the season as a center, but he did his best work as a guard. His size and weight were a great asset to him in his work on the line. His work on the team can not be over-estimated.

EARL BROWN Center

Although Earl Brown played center most of the time, he did equally well in the backfield. He played consistent football all season, and despite his size, made himself felt against his opponents. Earl will be back again next year, ready to play the best football he has ever played.

EARL PLATT Tackle

Earl Platt is one of the boys that will help make next year's team a winner. He did good work this season, helping out the team in several tight places. Much is expected of him in the 1930 season.

The Football Season

WOODROW WILSON 0—McKINNEY 7

In this practice game the Woodrow Wilson team was defeated by one touchdown. The team was inexperienced, and several of the regulars were not ready. Earl Brown played a good game at quarterback. E. J. Gannn and Bob Webb also played outstanding games.

WOODROW WILSON 6—HIGHLAND PARK 6

In the second game the Wildcats tied Highland Park. Highland Park had a good team, and was out to avenge the defeat received last year at the hands of Woodrow. It seemed as if this would occur until Woodrow, in a whirlwind finish, made a touchdown in the last few minutes of play. J. R. Smith made an off-tackle play to tie the score. There was no time for either team to score, and the game ended a tie.

WOODROW WILSON 0—FOREST 12

In the third game of the series Woodrow met Forest at the North Dallas Field. In the first two periods of the game the two teams were fairly well matched. In the last few minutes of the third quarter a Forest player recovered a fumble and put the ball on the Wildcat six-yard line. In a series of drives the Forest team put the ball across. The Wildcats braced up, but the damage had been done. For the remainder of the game the ball remained mostly in midfield. Allen Hansen, J. R. Smith, and E. J. Gannon played creditable games.

WOODROW WILSON 0—NORTH SIDE 20

Woodrow Wilson was defeated by North Side, Fort Worth, at the North Dallas Field, by a score of 0-20. The field was very muddy, and the Wildcats' fast men were slowed considerably. The Wildcats threatened several times but failed to get the ball across.

THE CRUSADER

WOODROW WILSON 6—CENTRAL 13

The Woodrow Wilson Wildcats took the short end of a 13-6 contest against the Fort Worth Central Panthers at Fort Worth, Friday, November 1. The Wilsonites showed strength in holding the famed Panthers to such a close score, as the Central team was a favorite to win by four touchdowns. The weather was ideal for a football contest. Central scored in the first quarter and again in the third. When the third quarter ended, the ball was on Central's ten-yard line in the Wildcat's possession. When the fourth opened, a ten-yard pass, Smith to Garretson, and a line plunge by Gannon made Wilson's only score. The Wildcats fighting desperately for another touchdown, tried to advance by repeatedly throwing passes, but the game ended without further score. The outstanding Wildcat players were Hughes, Sable, Black, and Webb.

WOODROW WILSON 12—NORTH DALLAS 14

On November 11, at Fair Park Stadium, the North Dallas Bulldogs defeated the Wildcats by the close score of 14-12. The unsuccessful try for extra point after each touchdown accounted for the defeat. Woodrow scored first, near the end of the first quarter. North Dallas made her scores in the second and third quarters. The Wildcats came back in the last period with another tally; but though they tried desperately by the aerial route to make another touchdown, the time was limited, and the game ended with the ball in midfield. Webb, Black, Sable and Gannon played good football.

WOODROW WILSON 37—STRIPLING 6

In this inter-city game, the Wildcats easily marched away to victory. Besides belonging to a new school, the Stripling players were far inferior in size to the Wildcats. The lone score for Stripling came in the third quarter, when practically the entire Wildcat scrub team was in. Both Gannon and Callahan were in excellent form. They both gained much ground for the Wildcats.

WOODROW WILSON 14—GRAND PRAIRIE 2

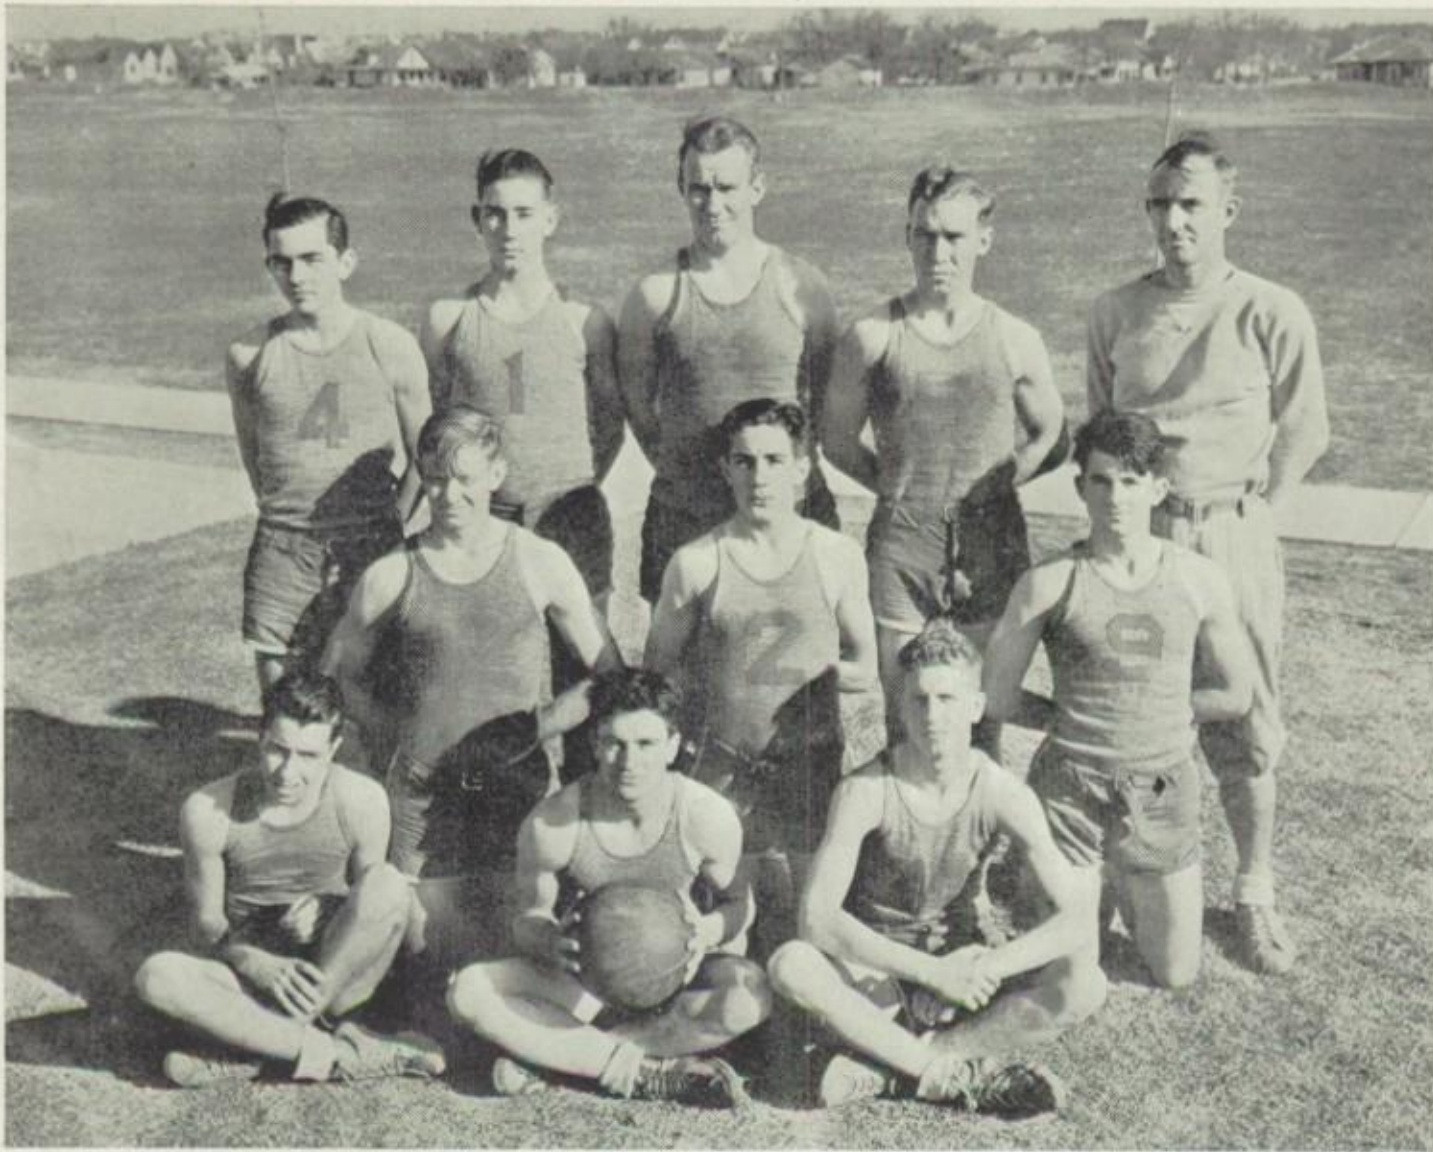

Woodrow Wilson defeated the Grand Prairie Gophers in a slow game at Grand Prairie. The feature of the afternoon was a beautiful sixty-five-yard run for a touchdown by Jimmy Black. The Wilsonites were outplayed during the first quarter, but found themselves near the end of it. In the second quarter Jimmy Black made his sensational broken-field run for a touchdown. In the third quarter Grand Prairie blocked a kick on the Woodrow line, thus obtaining a safety, their only score of the game. The outstanding players for the game were Black, Webb, and Sable.

WOODROW WILSON 0—OAK CLIFF 6

Oak Cliff defeated Woodrow Wilson 6-0. The game was one of the most strongly contested and hardfought engagements of the year. The Leopards scored late in the first quarter, after a series of line plunges and short passes. For the remainder of the game the ball changed hands often and traveled from one end of the field to the other. Twice during the third period the Wildcats seriously threatened the Leopard goal. A series of drives placed the ball on the Oak Cliff three-yard line, but the Wilsonites failed to put it over. Again, near the end of the quarter, Chester Garretson caught a beautiful pass, which appeared to be a certain touchdown; but Chester stepped a little out as he caught the ball, and the pass was ruled incomplete. Paul Callahan again showed ability in plunging the line. Black and Sable were outstanding for Woodrow Wilson.

WOODROW WILSON 26—SUNSET 12

The Woodrow Wilson Wildcats terminated their 1929 football season with a brilliant victory over the Sunset High Bisons at Fair Park Stadium on Thanksgiving Day. The final score was 26-12. The Wildcats rose from an average team, at the beginning of the season, to a powerful, versatile, championship team. The first Wildcat score came as the result of a drive late in the first quarter. Callahan made the score. Again, in the second quarter, Callahan plunged over the line for another score. After a third score by the Woodrow team early in the third quarter, Woodward broke through the Crimson line for Sunset's two touchdowns. The Wildcats came back in the last quarter and scored again when Howe caught a beautiful pass and walked across the goal line. All the Woodrow Wilson team played championship football; but Callahan, Webb, and Sable were outstanding.

The Basketball Season

The Wildcats enjoyed a very successful basket ball season during 1929-30. Although they lost the first three games, they returned to life and played excellent basket ball, winning six out of the last seven games, to finish in a tie for second place with Forest and Oak Cliff. Eight of the Woodrow Wilson men received the letter. They are Gannon, Marshall, Hansen, Moursund, Ruhland, Howe, Platt, and Brown. Parker Howe was also chosen a guard on the all-city team.

Track

It appears at this date that Woodrow Wilson will easily repeat the victory of last year and carry the honors in the city track meet. Nine members are back from last year, and several new ones are showing up well. Woodrow Wilson won its first meet against Dallas Tech and Oak Cliff on Saturday, March 8, with a score of 84 points. The Wildcats won all but three first places, and placed men in every event. Those on the team are: Gannon, Black, McElroy, Platt, Neathery, Bert, Owens, Johnson, Wicker, Sable, Stein, Herman, Grimshaw, Williams, Erwin, Pickard, Zadik, Haley, Champion, and Ewell.

Golf

After the first three matches the Woodrow Wilson Golf Team is in second place. The Wildcat Golf Team has, up to the present date, won 6 points from Dallas Technical, 3 points from Forest, and 4 points from Sunset. Reynolds Smith and Louis Nowlin are on the first team, and Herbert Guldahl and Irving Gamewell make the second team. James Jolly is the alternate. The team is hoping to win the tournament this year.

Tennis Club

The Tennis Club of Woodrow Wilson has endeavored to extend the interest of tennis throughout the school. Plans for a class tournament have been made, and the winners of this tournament will be given numerals.

The club had thirty-four members at the beginning of the season. Out of this group were selected the three boys and the three girls who will represent the school in the City Meet. This team will play the five other high schools in Dallas. The winners of the City Meet will then go to the District Meet, and if victorious there, will go to the State Meet.

Senior Hi-Y

The Hi-Y has progressed rapidly since it was first organized in Woodrow Wilson. At each meeting are given a helpful Bible discussion and a ten-minute talk on some subject of interest to the club. One of the aims of this organization is to create and extend throughout the school a good Christian character. If it accomplishes something in this direction alone, its existence has been justified.

Little Theatre

The Little Theatre, under the direction of H. Bush Morgan, is made up of the members of the student body who are interested in dramatics. Many interesting and helpful programs have been given, some of which consisted of one-act plays, directed by the different members. Also several attractive social activities have been enjoyed throughout the year. The accomplishments of this worthy organization have been greatly enhanced by the untiring efforts of the following officers:

Girl Reserves

The purpose of the Woodrow Wilson High School Girl Reserves is "To accept and strive to live the standard of our highest ideals." Our slogan is "To face life squarely." The members of the club are ready at all times to render any service to the school and to give aid in keeping its standard always up to the highest and best. Any girl in our school is eligible for membership, and a most hearty invitation is extended to all girls to join the "Circle of Light."

Miss Ruby Keith, Miss Frances Alexander, and Mrs. Leta Skiles Lourey are the sponsors of the club.

Having a well-precedented ideal in the 1929 "Crusader", the senior class of 1930 has endeavored to uphold in this second annual the established standard of the previous year.

The staff is very grateful to each person who has worked toward this end. Duties have been discharged in an admirable manner and effort has been untiring.

The members of the art staff under Miss Eleanor Benners have worked with an enthusiasm that has made cooperation with them a genuine pleasure.

In a financial way, the annual is fortunate in being again under the sponsorship of Mr. Pile. His department has proved itself capable both in obtaining advertisements and in selling the books.

The literary staff has been favored by the able direction of Miss Ethel Reed, whose experience and patience in aiding editors to prepare their required material have been deeply appreciated.

The sympathetic and understanding attitude of principal, faculty, and student body toward the staff has made the experiences of the year pleasant to recall.

The success of this volume will not be dependent on its sales, nor be governed by the voice of critics, but will be proportionate to the delight it brings to the students of this school, which delight, we hope, will grow mellow in the light of increasing years.

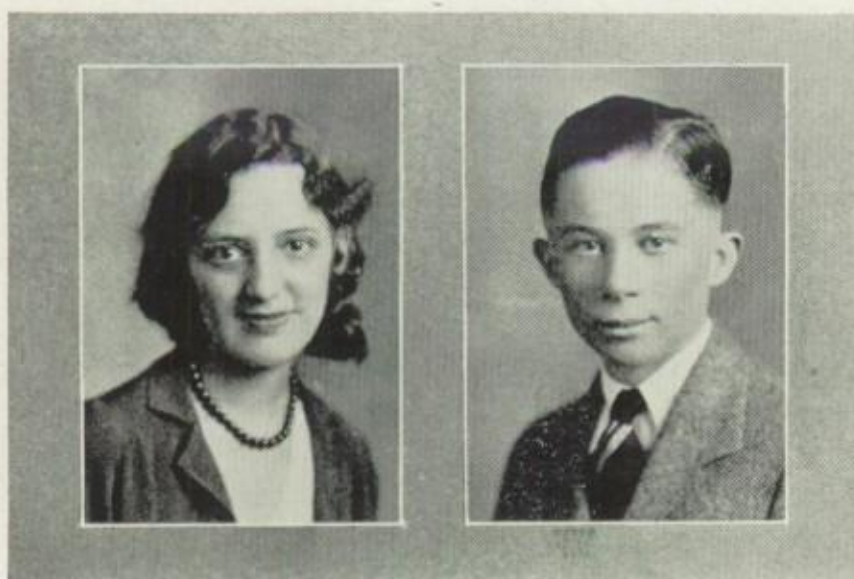

GEORGE HOPKINS, JR.

Woodrow Wilson News Staff

On November 1, 1929, appeared the first issue of the only high school newspaper in Dallas, the WOODROW WILSON NEWS, edited by and for the pupils of this school. The enthusiasm with which this new venture was received has gone a long way toward making a success of the paper.

MARY GLYNNNE EDWARDS
Editor-in-Chief

HERBERT STELLMACHER
Business Manager

Probably one of the most interesting and unusual features of the publication is that it is existing solely from sales made in the school. It has no advertisers and no financial aid except in the form of support from the students.

The combination of this whole-hearted support and the excellent co-operation of the staff has made the paper one of the most successful activities of the school.

The Senior Honor Council

The Senior Honor Council, the only student government organization in Woodrow Wilson High School, is composed of honor students of the senior class, and is selected twice a year by the president in charge for that semester. The members are approved by the faculty and are on probation for two weeks, after which time they elect officers. The Council is the governing body of the library, and its duties are to see that all students not only enjoy the library but maintain a quiet, orderly atmosphere so that anyone may study and read in the proper environment.

ONE-ACT PLAY

CAST

Mamie Stewart	MILDRED ROPER
Jim Stewart	WILSON CRONENWETT
Ted Connally	THOMAS COLLINS

The Woodrow Wilson Little Theater won the preliminary one-act play contest February 14, with "Radio".

The story concerns Mamie Stewart, who longs to return to Chicago and its bright lights, and Jim Stewart, her husband, who is a western farmer. Ted Connally, an Irishman who sold a tractor to Jim, gives Mamie a radio to keep her from being lonesome. She and her husband quarrel over it and she decides to return to Chicago. However, at the crucial moment, a lullaby is broadcast over the radio; Mamie and Jim recognize it as the song they sang to their baby, which had died six months before, and Mamie, realizing how much Jim had loved the child, stays with him.

Mildred Roper was chosen as the best girl actor; Wilson Cronenwett was similarly honored as the best boy actor.

"Adam and Eva"

The January Senior Class presented "Adam and Eva" January 10, 1930. The play was directed by H. Bush Morgan.

Adam Smith has never enjoyed homelife and is longing for it. Mr. King, who has found out that a rich man's family life is not all it is made out to be, decides to take a trip and leave his family in Smith's charge. Eva King is being pursued by two fortune hunters, Lord Andrew and the family physician, Dr. Delamater. Julie is married to Clinton De Witt, who is an idle loafer. Aunt Abby and Uncle Horace are distant relatives.

One evening Adam tells the family Mr. King has lost his money. They start a chicken farm and everybody goes to work.

"Spotlights of 1930"

The music and public speaking departments, under the direction of Miss Johanna Klotsche and H. Bush Morgan, respectively, presented a minstrel called "Spotlights of 1930" on February 14.

The program, which was entirely minstrel in its effect, consisted of songs by the chorus, dances, popular music, selections by the harmonica band, and jokes. John Mitchell, tap dancer, and Bill Erwin, singer, were especially good.

Pennies were thrown on the stage from the audience in true minstrel style, and everyone enjoyed the evening very much. "Spotlights of 1930" was perhaps the most successful entertainment that has been given at Wilson. There was an extremely large crowd present.

Ballad Book

PREFACE

This book of ballads is a collection from the English 7 classes of the Woodrow Wilson High School of Dallas, Texas. Miss Ethel Reed, the teacher, has selected these ballads from her three classes as the most representative, that is, the most suggestive of the form of the early English ballad.

That the reader may better appreciate these poems, it is well to mention the outstanding characteristics of the model, the early English ballad. First, in their folk songs the peasants very frequently used the numbers three and seven. Some turn of the human mind causes these numbers to be considered extraordinary, ominous, supernatural. Second, repetition is very common, for the peasants found that repetition gives a pleasing musical effect. Third, the usual style of the ballad is a vigorous narrative appropriately expressed by a four-line stanza, which is most often iambic tetrameter alternating with iambic trimeter, with a rhyme scheme of abcb. Fifth, the dominant tone of the ballad is tragic. That a tragic theme prevails is shown by the fact that "make my bed", an expression suggesting death, is very frequent in this form of composition.

We have endeavored to arrange the ballads in this book in a logical order. The reader will find that the first poem, "Mother and Child", is serious, following the sentiment as well as the form of the early English ballad. The rest of the narratives, however, are amusing because, though they follow its form, they ridicule the over-sentimental feeling of the English ballad. All of the ballads except "Mother and Child" deal primarily either with a tragedy concerning love or with a tragedy concerning school.

We wish to acknowledge the work of those students whose ballads appear in this book.

ELIZABETH AKIN, Art Editor

JOSEPHINE HIGGINBOTHAM, Typist

JOSEPHINE VAN ZANDT, Literary Editor

[Editor's note: This page and the following 8 pages constitute a reprint of a book of ballads written and edited by members of Miss Ethel Reed's English 7 classes. Two copies of the book were presented to the Woodrow Wilson High School Library.]

Serious Ballad

MOTHER AND CHILD

By MARY FRANCES GARDNER

"O why must this be, my little son,
 O why, pray why must this be?
 O why, O why, dear Father above,
 Must my son so sickly be?

"O why must this be, dear Father of all,
 O why, pray why must this be?
 What wrong have I done, dear Heavenly Lord,
 That I should punished be?

"Father, dear Father, dear Father above,
 My son is scarcely three.
 Then why, oh why, so soon as this
 Should You take my dear from me?"

The rain beat down that dreary night
 On the hut and the gray at the door,
 And she sat o'er the corpse in the selfsame way
 As of her husband a year before.

But the shabby hut was more barren now,
 Just a cot, one quilt, and a chair;
 And a mother sat pining, dazed, and in tears
 For her son in that hut so bare.

The next day dawned early as others had
 But much grayer and sadder than they,
 For a grief-stricken mother sat brooding and waiting
 For the parson to come and to pray.

And when the good parson came that day,
 A small boy's suit he brought,
 Black velvet all trimmed in gold and gray
 And shoes the mother had sought.

So the child was laid quietly and devoutly to rest,
 But the mother was thankful at heart
 That her child's shroud had been that of a prince
 Through the parson's great kindness of heart.

Farcical Love Affairs

A TRAGEDY

By GEORGIA LAMAR

There lived a boy named Jack McGill;
A handsome sheik was he.
He begged a date from Mary Kate
Her escort for to be.

"O when will you come?" said Mary Kate.
"O when will you come?" said she.
"The moon is bright. Why not tonight?
I'll come tonight," said he.

At seven o'clock young Jack McGill
Upon his way did start.
He was elate, for ahead was Kate,
And happy was his heart.

He hadna been a mile from home,
A mile but barely three,
He had to stop because a cop
Called, "Why so wild and free?"

"Where are you going, young man?" said he.
"Where are you going so fast?"
"But I have need for so much speed;
This date, it cannot last."

The cop replied, "You come with me.
To jail with me you'll go.
The country side, both far and wide
Is better with you so."

"Alas, alack," cried out our Jack,
"If I only could get bail!"
But Mary Kate in vain did wait,
For Jack was fast in jail.

A MARRIED ROMANCE

By PAULINE DASCH

'Twas at a small town movie,
Where all the lights burn low,
Two sentimental lovers sat
A-waiting for the show.

The boy was brave and up and said,
"My dear, will you be mine?
You will not have to wash a dish,
Nor stay at home and pine."

They were not married a month, a month,
A month but barely three,
When up and spoke the brave young man,
As angry as could be:

"I can't see why you don't stay home
And wash the dirty dishes
Instead of trying to follow me
With all your hugs and kisses."

He had not gone a step, a step,
A step but barely one,
When the young little wife walked to the door
And shot him with her gun.

A sad look came on the girl's pale face;
Her heart was struck with sorrow.
She turned the gun upon herself
And died upon the morrow.

THE ABSENT-MINDED LAD

By MARTIN CORNELL

There was a lad, a very young lad,
A lad of whom 'tis said
Quite oft' when he was distracted,
He wandered from his head.

This lad he owned a buggy;
'Twas called an auto-car.
'Twould run as smooth as clockwork
And take you fast and far.

One day he met a lass, a lass,
A pretty lass was she.
"O pray, my pretty maid," he begged,
"Pray will you ride with me?"

"Why, thank you, sir, I'll ride with you
In your big fine auto-car.
I've waited long for the trolley,
And I live out of town so far."

The lad kept gazing at the lass
And at her golden hair.
He did not notice in the road
A big truck in repair.

His brain was getting distracted
From looking at the girl.
He had a sense of danger,
But his mind was still awlirl.

He glanced at the road for an instant
And saw the danger at last.
He tried to step on the brakes,
But instead he stepped on the gas.

Now they from this earth have departed
With both of their brains awlirl,
The lad with the poor distracted mind
And the lass with the golden curl,

THE FICKLE LOVER

By ELIZABETH AKIN

Sweet Dorothy sat at her history book,
For tomorrow was final test.
On her lovely face was a downcast look,
A heaving within her breast.

"O woe is me!" the young maid cried.
"I would that this were o'er.
If I fail in this, 'tis a fatal blow,
For my grade can go no lower."

That night her lover came to see
Sweet Dorothy, so fair.
"Come with me for a ride," said he.
Dorothy forgot her despair.

Next morning when Dorothy asked if she passed,
The teacher answered, "Nay."
Dorothy was overcome with fear
And fainted dead away.

"O mother, mother, make my bed,"
That night the maiden said.
"O make it quickly, mother dear,
For tomorrow I'll be dead."

They buried her 'neath a willow tree.
Her lover said, "Well, now,
I'll look around for another girl.
I'll have a good time—and how!"

FAITHLESS SAL AND FAITHFUL JAMES

By FRANK LINCOLN

"O take me up in a thing like that!
O take, O take me, James."

"How can we soar in the air so high
When I don't have a plane?"

"Then I'll find some one who has a plane,"
Quoth Sal as she left his side;

"Then I'll find someone who has a plane,
And forth with him I'll ride."

As she soared in the air with her new-found swain,
Of poor James she gave not a whit;
But when the motor went dead in mid-air,
She wished with her love she had sit.

"O mother dear, please make my bed,"
For I know anon I shall die;
O mother dear, please make my bed,"
Gasped Sal as she fell from the sky.

Then James began to hate himself
For losing a jewel so rare;
In Java he wished himself hunting for snakes,
And proceeded his clothes to tear.

"O mother dear, please make my bed,"
Quoth James as he rent his hair.
"O mother dear, please make my bed,
For her I'll see na mair."

And now by day and by night they lie,
They lie 'neath the green, green grass.
Sweet Sal, she died for her cruelty;
And James, for the sight of a lass.

SIR HANSEN'S CAREER

By CROFTON HERRING

Sir Morgan sits in Wilson High,
 Raving and pulling his hair;
 "O where shall I get a student bright,
 Who to act in my play does dare?"

O up and spake a pupil,
 Sat on the dunces' stool,—
 "Sir Hansen is the best student
 That ever saw a school."

Sir Morgan has written a short summons
 On a small brown card,
 And sent it to Sir Hansen,
 Who was walking in the yard.

"Act in our play, act in our play,
 Act in our play," it said.
 "Our chief actor, Sir Oliver,
 Has fallen and broken his head."

"O who has recommended me
 For such a difficult part
 And of me robbed my precious time?
 Indeed, it breaks my heart."

They hoisted the curtain at eight o'clock;
 There stood the quaking hero.
 Said he, "Villain, your time has come,
 For now I——er——O dear, O!"

"O where shall I get an actor good
 To take my part for me
 Till I retreat unto the wings
 My script for to see?"

No actor good did volunteer
 To take his part for a turn
 While he unto the wings might flee
 In order his lines to learn.

Sir Morgan in suspense did wait
 What seemed to him a year;
 At last in despair he called, "Curtain!"
 Thus ended Sir Hansen's career.

THE TRAGEDY OF MARY DEE

By JOSEPHINE VAN ZANDT

"O let us sing and sing and sing,"
Cried little Mary Dee,

"For I can scarce contain myself,
So full am I of glee.

"For mother dear has promised me
A party at the show,
If quick from school I wend my way;
So swift as fowl I'll go."

But loud and clear the school bell's toll
Put end to Mary's joy,
Threatening dreaded tardiness
To laggard girl or boy.

"O woe is me! O woe is me!
O woe is me! Poor thing!
How can I reach the English room
Before the fatal ring?"

She urged speed into her feet,
Let fly her hair in riot.
She gained the threshold of the school,
And still the bell was quiet.

A flight, a flight, a flight she climbed
To Miss Reed's English room.
But just before she reached her seat,
The last bell pealed her doom.

"Forsooth," the teacher cried, aghast,
"O this will never do!
For such a crime as tardiness
This day you'll surely rue."

A period, a period,
And more—a sum of sev'n.
"Alas", this luckless maiden cried,
"Would I were dead in Heav'n!"

THE TRAGEDY

By PATSY PEACOCK

There was a girl of fair sixteen,
In English she was failing;
She saw no use in studying books,
And so her grades were ailing.

One night she studied long and hard,
On English did she think;
Next day alas, alas, alas,
She'd quite forgot her ink!

She wrote her test in pencil lead;
To read it was so hard
That teacher made her grade so low
She flunked out on her card.

THE FATE OF MARY JANE

By J. W. BUSH

Young Mary Jane was fond of gum;
She even chewed at school.
The other students seldom did,
For 'twas against the rule.

Now Mary Jane was a careless girl.
When her gum ceased to taste sweet,
She threw it down upon the floor
To stick to people's feet.

One day at school as she was chewing
Three pieces, maybe more,
A teacher said, "Throw out that gum."
So she dropped it on the floor.

The gum lay there for several hours,
And many folks passed by.
But no one trod upon it;
I don't know the reason why.

As fate would have it, Mary Jane
Retraced her steps that day,
And she stepped upon that chewing gum
That she'd left in the way.

She pulled and pulled and pulled her foot
Till she was very ill;
But the gum, it held her hard and fast,
And I guess she's stuck there still.

MASTERPIECES

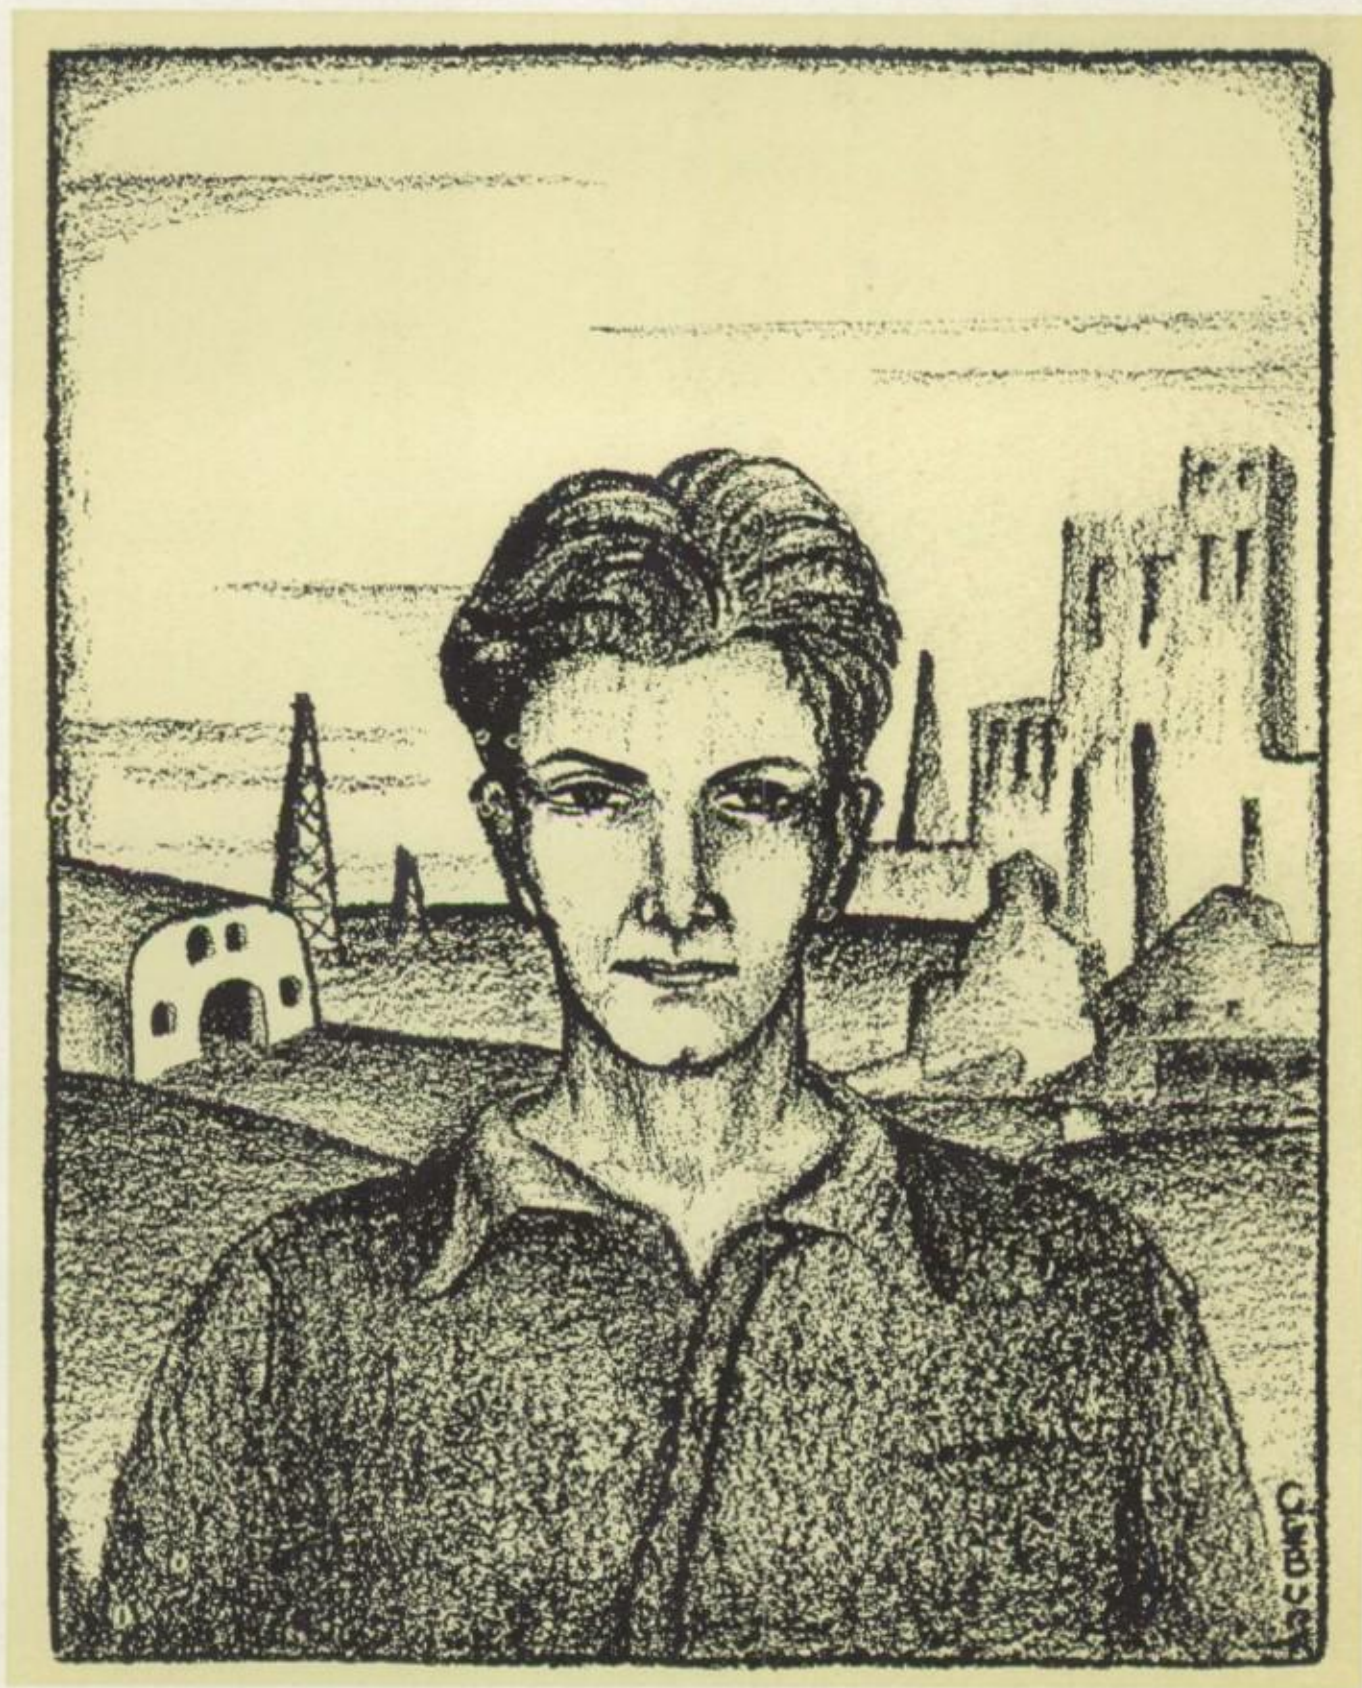

By ANN CATHERINE COOPER

Last night as I did lie in sweet repose,
 Fair Nature with her brush of crystal white
 Did paint the windows of my bedroom site.
 An intricate design of leaves she chose
 To pattern, ere the sun and I arose.
 This lacy thing was done with stroke so light
 It seemed to be with fairy bands bedight,
 Her secret art of arts not to disclose.
 As on a canvas I must paint my way,
 Oh, Reverend Teacher of Life's masterpiece,
 I would that I could take my brush in hand
 And sketch a life of worth, sublime and grand.
 Teach me, O Master of a hand so true,
 To shape my life as Thou would'st have me do.

AN EARLY LESSON

By JOSEPHINE VAN ZANDT

Too early from my childish play, I thought,
 While all my friends dreamed naught but "Run-Sheep-Run,"
 Or "Wolfie-over-the-River", I'd begun
 To learn from what the thread of life is wrought.
 A confidante, I painfully was taught
 The complex way in which life's thread is spun,
 And learned, the while begrudging time from fun,
 That good intentions often come to naught.
 But now I mourn my secret selfishness,
 And now rejoice that with such nobleness
 And wisdom as was hers I have been thrown;
 For by the contact I have wiser grown.
 Experience alone can right our ways,
 But early, well-taught truths help clear the maze.

BALLOON CONVENTION

The Convention for Bigger and Better Balloons opened yesterday at the Live Stock Building at Fair Park. Among the most prominent delegates were D. F. Sable of Letot, Jack Winters of Granbury, Desmond Neitzel of Lisbon, and Edward Parkinson of Dallas. The Big Balloonier, D. F. Sable, opened the meeting with a bang by sticking a thumb tack in one of the balloons on exhibit.

Bob Walker, hot air specialist, was elected official blower-up. It was also decided to open a campaign for the extinction of the manufacturers of thumb tacks in the hope that in the future fewer balloons will be burst.

To Catherine Burr and Dolores Aron was awarded the 1940 contract for painting dewdrops on Plunkett's Punk Parachutes, which were officially adopted by the convention.

VICTORY ASSURED

The nomination of Van Zandt for the much contested presidency of the Lemon Aid Society created a current of approval among the retiring officers.

In view of the split ranks of the opposing party, the zeal of the Van Zandt party, and the able leadership of the campaign manager, John Howard, the victory is assured.

Howard refused to give any further details.

PERFECT CRIME

Early Saturday evening while residents of the Bert home on Ross Avenue were sleeping, a burglar, using a fishhook and line, caught Glenn Bert's trousers and hauled the big catch out of the window.

After extricating a cancelled check, a two-carrot diamond ring, nine handkerchiefs, an Everleak fountain pen, two dice, a seventeen-and-a-half-jewel aluminum watch, a street car token, some gum, a pawn ticket, and an empty dime bank, the angler left the trousers neatly folded on the freshly painted window sill along with several finger prints. The fishing apparatus, left standing against the window, contained his name and telephone number burned into the bamboo.

Chief of Patrolmen, J. W. Askins, announces that as yet no clues have been found in this baffling mystery.

EDITORIAL

Gum is all right in its place. Chew it whenever, wherever, and as long as you will; but when all the sweet is gone, dispose of it properly, for it can be of no further use to anyone.

This weighty question has extended beyond local circles and now attracts the attention of the foremost figures of the age.

Cecil Stell, Mayor of Cranberry, Texas, advocates sticking it on telephone poles, for this not only preserves the wood, but also catches insects.

John Fisher, "Hairnet King," proposes that gum paper after the order of fly paper should be distributed at convenient places.

Lucile Jackson, President of S. P. A. F. (Society for Promotion of All Freshmen), argues that the only logical disposal of gum is to swallow it.

This far-stretching subject has inspired even the great modern poet, Bill Cronenwett, who pours forth his very soul in the following magnificent apostrophe:

AN AMERICAN TRAGEDY
or
BY GUM!

O gum, left lying on this chair,
You've wrecked my every chance
Of taking my beloved out
To dinner and a dance.

For I have sat upon thee, gum.
I'm held as in a trance;
And even though I get away,
I've ruint my best pants!

UNROMANTIC FACT

A scientist discloses
From studying noses
A startling sameness in length;
He draws a conclusion
That breaks our illusion
That the nose portrays weakness or strength.

He says that the reason
We quite out of reason,
Consider each nose as unique
Is not 'cause it's longer
Or broader or stronger
But because of the bones of the cheek.

Henceforth, one poetic
Composing an epic,
In describing his heroine's nose,
Must say it's the chin
And the cheek-bone curved in
That give her that look of repose.

OF LITERARY INTEREST

Perhaps nothing in recent years has so stimulated the literary life of the Southwest as the leadership of Herbert Stellmacher, to whom the public is indebted for the creation of a new school of poetry, the Rhythmal—Abysmal—Dismal.

The following verses are the work of local poets, who with the artist's inherent shrinking from publicity, have written under a pseudonym.

 Anna GERALD RUHLAND
 A Peasant RICHARD WOOD

Inus Marie Bell, her voice again glorious, returns to the stage after a year's study in Germany, as the leading singer in "Ponsetta", the great opera composed by Josephine Higginbothamizetti.

In the opera the passions love, hate and revenge predominate; sudden death takes a toll of three characters. It needed a musico-dramatic genius to combine so skillfully such an intricate plot with fitting music.

Miss Bell has done more than justice to her role and the result is drawing much favorable comment from the two outstanding musical critics, Beatrice Goodwin and Cora Nell Cole.

MISS LAMAR IS WED

The wedding of Count Bulabulonski of Vickery to Miss Georgia Lamar took place last evening at 12 o'clock at Salt Peter's Church. The ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend Frank Norton.

The reception rooms, carrying out the prevailing color scheme, were decorated with red buttercups and yellow jaundice. Miss May Byrne sang "The Beginning of the Strife" prior to the wedding march, played by Miss Pauline Childress.

The bride wore a red voile dress and red hat. She carried an arm bouquet of sunflowers tied with red tulle.

Miss Gwendolyn Crass was maid of honor. The Misses Evelyn Cuthbertson, Fredna Davenport, Willa Mae Brown, Eddie Ganelle Loving, Juanita England, and Evelyn Allred were bridesmaids. The best man was Brooks Brawner.

A panic was narrowly averted shortly after the happy couple had been united when Joseph Grubb, the ring bearer, cried that everyone must kiss the bride. All the men rushed for the exits and were prevented from leaving only by the prompt arrival of refreshments. The dainty breakfast was laid on a table covered with yellow mosquito netting over red oilcloth. The color scheme was further developed by the delicate menu of pickled beets and dairy butter. Miss Joleta Thurmond presided at the beet bowl.

The bride and groom left immediately for Letot. The bride wore a yellow crepe traveling suit with red accessories.

The couple will be at home in Mesquite after while.

NOTED LECTURERS

The Dallas Open Forum officially announces the speakers who will lecture during the coming season. The subject matter is varied and should interest a great minority.

The speakers and their subjects are as follows: Professor Vanderwoude on "The Gubernatorial Conditions"; Dora Stevenson, the novelist, on "The Philoprogenitiveness of Savages"; the Rev. Duncan Munn on the "Church as a Formulatory Institution"; Elizabeth Akin, the artist, on "What is Physiognomy?"; Billy Scott, the geologist, on "Elements Found in the Putomago Region"; Dr. Garretson, the Warvard President, on "The Eccentricities of the Puritan Age as Displayed by the Hudibras".

ON THE AIR

Station SAP will broadcast the following program from two-to-toot-two:

1. "Words," a pantomime—Mildred Roper and Celestia Fore.
2. Health Harangue: "The Elements of New Monia"—Jule Champion, M. D. (Mental Defective).
3. Inspirational Talk: "Never Say Fail"—William Parrish.
4. Song Cycle: (a) "My Permit", (b) "Forgotten", (c) "Roads to Roam"—William Reid, local tinner.
5. Radio Revival Sermon: "Flat Souls"—Thayer Moursund, D. D. (Delightful Darling).
6. Children's Bedtime Hour: "'Dood Night Ditties"—George Hopkins, Jr.
7. Domestic Chats: "Treatment of Fresh Nuts"—Jean Nicholson.
8. Whistling Duet: "Lie Berry Blues"—E. J. Gannon and Earl Brown.

FEATHERWEIGHT BOUT

Friday night will determine the King of the Featherweights. Frank Lincoln will battle against Richard McBride for this title. The managers of the pugilists are Bill Brown for McBride and Clyde Funderburk for Lincoln. Both managers seem confident of their protégés.

All the box seats have been sold, and the standing room is almost inadequate to take care of the expected throngs. Clarence Coutant, ticket salesman, anticipates a crowded stadium.

McBride is in splendid condition, and ate a hearty breakfast of a dozen eggs, a loaf of bread, four pounds of butter, and several quarts of stretch-berry jam.

Lincoln is likewise in the best of physical trim and ate a breakfast consisting of a wineglassful of buttermilk, a humming bird's wing on toast, and two large gooseberries.

Betting odds favor Lincoln chiefly because of his former experience as Editor of Athletics on the CRUSADER staff.

Frank Seay: "These modern girls don't want to get married."

Josephine Higginbotham: "Why, how's that?"

Frank: "I've asked them."

MOVIE STAR RETURNS

Miss Prudence Threetop, in real life Martha Ruth Smith, is in Dallas making a personal appearance at the Pajestic Theatre this week.

Miss Threetop was met at the station by Mayor Joe Johnson, Senator Boyd Layton, Congressman Henry Long, and the White Rock bus.

It has been rumored that Miss Threetop will announce her engagement to a prominent Dallas banker. However, neither Miss Threetop nor Edwin Joyce has confirmed this report.

Edwin: "I used to think—"

Martha: "What made you stop?"

GREATEST INVENTION IN HISTORY

Yesterday a telegram was received here stating that the great "Whazzit" would be on exhibit in Dallas soon.

This vehicle exceeds anything hitherto invented by the mechanical mind of man. This remarkable "Whazzit" has a motor of greater power than that of an aeroplane. It was invented by the two renowned inventors, Edwin Mussina and Marvin Minyard.

It has a body like an aeroplane, motor boat, and automobile combined. It has the wheels of an automobile and the rudders of a boat. It can fly, swim, float, or run on land. It seats as many people as a street car, yet can be diminished and converted into a small coupe.

This wonderful "Whazzit", which burns air and water, will be on exhibit at two local establishments, that of S. J. Mings, Ford dealer, and that of Henry Adrian, Kiddie Kar dealer.

OBITUARY

THE FABLE OF THE WELL

A well-known farmer needed a fresh water supply; so he said to himself, "Well, well, I think it would be well for me to dig a well."

So he dug a well, but the well didn't turn out well, and what's more it didn't turn out water. Well, this well didn't promise well at first, but just as tears were beginning to well up in his eyes, he found water, which was welcome. In well-deserved joy he well decided to name the second well "'Tis well", and the first well "Tain't well". So all's well that ends well.

MORE WELL

Dr. Henderson is digging a well in his yard. He went out to look at it the other day, lost his balance, and fell in. Everybody said it served him right, for a doctor's business is to attend the sick and leave the well alone.

Mr. Norton: "Now, Eugene, what stirring speech did Paul Revere make when he finished his immortal ride?"

Eugene Mason: "Whoa!"

Mr. Parris: "On my last fishing trip I caught 999 fish, all whoppers."

"Come now," Mrs. Collins advised, "why not make it a thousand?"

"No," replied O. E. "I caught 999. I'm not going to tell a lie for the sake of one fish."

Fond Mother: "Yes, George is studying French and algebra. Say, 'Good morning' to the lady in algebra, George."

Martin Cornell: "Hooray! $10 for my latest novel."

Pauline P.: "Fine. From whom did you get the money?"

Martin C.: "The express company; they lost it."

Milam J.: "I think I hear burglars. Dan, are you awake?"

Dan W.: "No."

Police Sergeant: "Is the man dangerously wounded?"

Merrill Barth: "Two of the wounds are fatal, but the other one isn't so bad."

Glenn Bert: "I rejoice that the world is filled with sunshine."

Bill Stine: "An optimist, eh?"

Glenn: "No, awning manufacturer."

Roberta Eaton: "What! Ten cents for that coat-hanger? Too much! Haven't you something cheaper?"

Clerk: "How about a nail, Miss?"

Mother: "The housemaid is ill; come and help me make the beds."

Elizabeth Cullum: "Impossible, Mother. You know I have to attend a meeting of the Helpers' League in ten minutes."

Benny: "I've never seen such dreamy eyes."

Martha Ruth: "You've never stayed so late before."

Miss Reed: "Margaret Paetschow, use officious in a sentence."

Margaret: "When Thayer and Marguerite fell in the lake, he hollered, 'Oh, fish us out'."

AND NOW the ice-box runs with gas. It is the simplest and most inexpensive chilling method, next to Jack Frost himself.

Two Tech students in Stockholm discovered this method, whereby a tiny gas flame plus a trickle of water makes ceaseless cold, year after year. No noise. No machinery.
